What Makes This New Cleopatra a Woman for the Ages?

Insightful Novel Shows How One Beautiful Woman Fights Back

Cléopâtre Lamaure, born on the first day of August 1978 in a small town in Mauritius, was often compared to Cleopatra of Egypt, not only because of her name, but because of their striking similarities in wit, courage, sweetness of voice, and above all, astounding beauty.

At thirty-one, it seemed that she bore more burdens than should have been expected at that age. In spite of the many hardships in her life, the atrocities that crushed her soul and caged her dreams, she gathered all her might to defeat all challenges, heroically.

What was it that kept her moving? Was it hope? Was it faith in herself or was it for someone else's sake?

She is currently an executive assistant for a prestigious company in Dubai, where she moved in 2005. Writing is her passion and she has been writing since age 15. She finally published her first book and is currently working on her next novel and a collection of short stories. "When I came to Dubai for the first time and mentioned that I was from Mauritius, most of the people here had never heard about my country before. I have always wanted to be a published writer, so in my first work, I wanted to take my readers on a journey to our Paradise Island, to our culture, and its people. I do miss my Mauritius and my family, but I cannot deny that Dubai and its people have taken a fundamental place in my life and heart.”
