Spectacular Sci-Fi Adventures Await in New Short Story Collection

This fascinating collection of science fiction and fantasy stories cover a span of 500 years. The stories range from a Native American shaman using magic to battle modern-day terrorists in “Mountain of Long Eyes,” to space opera mysteries in distant galaxies in the story “Beyond Space.”

There is humor and social criticism in “Why My Mother Hates Me,” and horror in “The Seat of Learning” and the vampire story “Red Blood.” A president may or may not have stopped an attempted coup in “Viewpoints.” There’s even a ghost story in “Why I Must Move.” One character is placed in two short stories, showing her evolution into an adult.

Some stories are humorous, some political, and some offer alternate history. Take a time travel trip when you read The Mountain of Long Eyes: An Anthology of Science Fiction and Fantasy.
