A Novel About WWII Survival Delves Into the POW Experience

Janos comes of age in a Russian prisoner of war camp in the explicit World War II novel Caught: Surviving the Turbulent River of Life.

Looking back at his experiences after many years, Janos, now a successful executive in Germany, reveals his horrifying experiences to a pretty young woman named Sparrow. She is allowed to relive his past and becomes drawn into an unnerving yet moving tapestry of shocking events that took place in POW camps deep within Russia.

Taken by force by the Nazis from his German family, 16-year-old Janos is tossed into the last-gasp efforts of WWII. His years-long incarceration takes him to places of darkness, where he lives through a near-death experience and survives physical and emotional starvation in hard labor camps. While vast numbers of prisoners perish, Janos eventually thrives as he finds friendship, compassion, healing, mentoring, and love.

“This book is not only a fascinating read, but an important story about war and survival. We are pleased to announce its release,” said Robert Fletcher, CEO of Strategic Book Publishing and Rights Agency.

About the Author: Born in Germany, Uta Christensen spent years in Ireland, New Zealand, and Australia before settling in California. Holding a bachelor of arts degree in English and German literature, she taught English at a community college and was an administrative analyst at the University of California. Her first book, her father’s memoir of survival in Russian POW camps, was published in Germany. She is also the author of two novels published in the U.S.: Bed of Roses, Bed of Thorns and Tough as Fine Silk, Escape from Beijing. The author lives half the year in California and half in Australia.
